

The Vikings are coming!

8+

Frank Schwieger
Janna Steimann

Eric, the Viking Boy
Adventures in Haithabu

48 pages, fully coloured,
21,5 x 30 cm, hardcover,
€ 14.95

Rights sold to China

A farm on the Baltic Sea, ca. 950. Erik's brother Leif, who took off on a Viking voyage months ago ready for adventure and hungry for loot, still hasn't returned. Erik sets off for the big Viking port Hedeby in search of his brother, but no one there has heard any news of Leif or his ship, the Whale Rider. Just as Erik is beginning to give up hope, a dragon ship appears on the horizon.

We accompany Erik on his journey and learn what the Viking community looked like, which gods they worshipped, why the raids they led with their fast ships were so successful for such a long time, and why they loved hair combs. We attend a Viking feast, watch a ship being built, and look over the shoulders of merchants and craftspeople.

An atmospheric non-fiction picture book about these legendary northerners and about the successful outcome of an adventurous journey. With impressive illustrations and exciting information about the life and culture of Vikings, who, contrary to their reputation, were not only menacing pirates but also farmers, merchants, seafarers, and explorers.

@GerstenbergVerlag

@bookrightsgerstenberg

GERSTENBERG

www.gerstenberg-verlag.de

Frank Schwieger teaches high school Latin and history and has been active as an author since 2009. His job has gotten him interested in nearly all ancient cultures.

Today Schwieger lives with his family in Schleswig-Holstein.

Janna Steimann, born 1981 in Unna, studied art at the HAW in Hamburg. She is a qualified designer with a concentration in illustration and has been working as a freelance illustrator since 2007.

www.janna-design.de

