Tambo is thoroughly fed up with always being the smallest. After all, he's an elephant! He will prove to everyone how big he is. He will scare a tiger away! He and his friend the bird prepare the courage test. But no one shows up, not even a tiger. With drooping ears, Tambo sadly trudges back to the herd. There they all are, the big elephants. And there's his Mom. Big and grey and dear as always. Next to her, a newborn elephant baby looks at Tambo full of curiosity. Now Tambo feels all the way down to the end of his trunk how wonderful it is to be a needed and looked up to as an older brother. And he thinks it's grand that he's no longer the littlest in the herd!

Stephanie Schneider,

born in 1972, wanted two things as a child: to have an elephant as a pet, and to write children's books someday. She still doesn't have an elephant as a pet. However, ever since 2004, she sits every morning in her favourite Hannover coffee shop and writes book and radio stories for children and adults.

Henrike Wilson,

born in 1961, studied graphic design and art in her native city of Cologne and in the United States. Today she lives and works as a freelance illustrator near Frankfurt on the Main. Her picture books have been translated into numerous languages.
