

Sooo Much To Discover...

Rotraut Susanne Berner has designed a book series whose large-format pictures show a whole town and its surroundings: a house for several families, a farm, a railway station, a community centre, a marketplace, a multistorey department store, and a large park. These pictures tell many little stories of things that happen to people and animals on a day, and every child can follow these stories. And since there are plenty of stories to tell about this town throughout the year Rotraut Susanne Berner designed a book for each season. So now everybody can discover for himself how life in the town and its surroundings changes over the year:
